SITUATION SUMMARY

Blanca Moisture to Reach Desert Southwest Tue/Wed

OUTLOOK: Moisture from Hurricane Blanca

Blanca is a major hurricane well off the coast of central Mexico and its remnant moisture is expected to have an impact on the desert southwest Tuesday and Wednesday of next week. The official forecast track takes Blanca into southern Baja California Sunday then it continues toward the northern Gulf of California Monday and Tuesday as it weakens.

Confidence is currently low that there will be widespread impacts on southern Nevada and surrounding areas of northwest Arizona and southeast California as computer models generally indicate the bulk of the moisture will be carried across central and eastern Arizona and the Four Corners region. However, it deserves close watching as subtle shifts in the position of a low pressure system along the southern California coast could pull moisture our direction. It is too early to specify impacts for any particular location, but the primary potential threat would be heavy rain producing thunderstorms with any significant push of moisture into our region. We will continue to send updates with more details as confidence increases.

SITUATION SUMMARY

Refugio ICP Update

Aids/LifeCycle Bike Race – Santa Barbara and Ventura Counties 5/5 and 5/6/2015 (Final)

- This morning, June 5, nearly 2,400 cyclists will ride past the oil spill cleanup work west of Refugio State Beach as part of AIDS/LifeCycle, a seven-day, 545-mile cycling event from San Francisco to Los Angeles that raises funds for San Francisco AIDS Foundation and the HIV/AIDS-related services of the Los Angeles LGBT Center. Representatives from the Unified Command and AIDS/LifeCycle have met to determine how best to accommodate the safe passage of cyclists while continuing the cleanup operations on the bluff. Continuing the cleanup work while ensuring road safety is a high priority for both Refugio Incident response and AIDS/LifeCycle. Vehicles and equipment will be moved off the road and away from the excavation site while riders are moving through the area, and cyclists will ride on the shoulder of US 101 as they had planned to do. Excavation work on the bluff will continue, with excavated contaminated soil stored onsite until the riders are through the area. "On behalf of the Unified Command, I am happy to say that we found a solution that lets the riders stay on the course while we continue our vital cleanup work," said Capt. Charlene Downey, the Coast Guard Federal On Scene Coordinator for the response. "Our first concern is rider safety; the precautions we have taken to modify our operations will ensure that the dedicated riders can safely ride past our workers. Our drivers will be cautious and aware of cyclists; California Highway Patrol and Santa Barbara Sheriff's Office will be on-site to help direct truck traffic and keep the cyclists safe. We salute the commitment of the riders as they complete their journey from San Francisco to Los Angeles." "We are relieved to be working together with the Unified Command to find a solution that allows AIDS/LifeCycle to proceed as planned while also continuing the cleanup effort," said AIDS/LifeCycle Senior Director Greg Sroda. "Our event participants raised a record $16.3 million this year to care for people living with HIV and help prevent new infections. They are equally passionate about the environment. We're pleased with this outcome, which we see as a win-win for two important causes."
- In addition to maintaining a safe roadway for the cyclists, response operations has monitored air emissions from the excavation and are confident that air quality will not pose any problem for the riders as they pass the work zone.
- Per the Cal OES Southern Region Duty Officer on 06/05/15 at 1700 hours: The AIDS/LifeCycle Bike Ride event moved through the Refugio Incident work area in Santa Barbara County by 1200 hours on Friday, June 5. There were no reported incidents as the event riders moved through the area.

SITUATION SUMMARY

Tar Ball Reports – Ventura, Los Angeles, and Orange Counties

- A separate Incident Command Post was established in the South Bay of Los Angeles and Orange Counties to respond to tar ball sightings in that area. The ICP for the Refugio Incident is responding to sightings in Santa Barbara and Ventura County. Samples have been collected at all tar ball sites and will be fingerprinted to determine if there is any correlation to the Refugio Beach Incident.
 - Per the Ventura County OA EOC, As of 6/04/15 all cleanup activity was completed and the Shoreline Cleanup and Assessment Teams will be conducting their final field inspections of Ventura County beaches.
 - As of June 4, 2015 at 1925 hours Los Angeles County OEM reported that Tar ball cleanup in City of Long Beach and South Bay area has been completed. This morning City of Long Beach will survey their beaches to ensure it is safe to reopen them. Los Angeles County OEM will continue to monitor and report as needed. The laboratory analysis of sampling material to determine the origin and chemical makeup of the tar balls are still pending.

WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

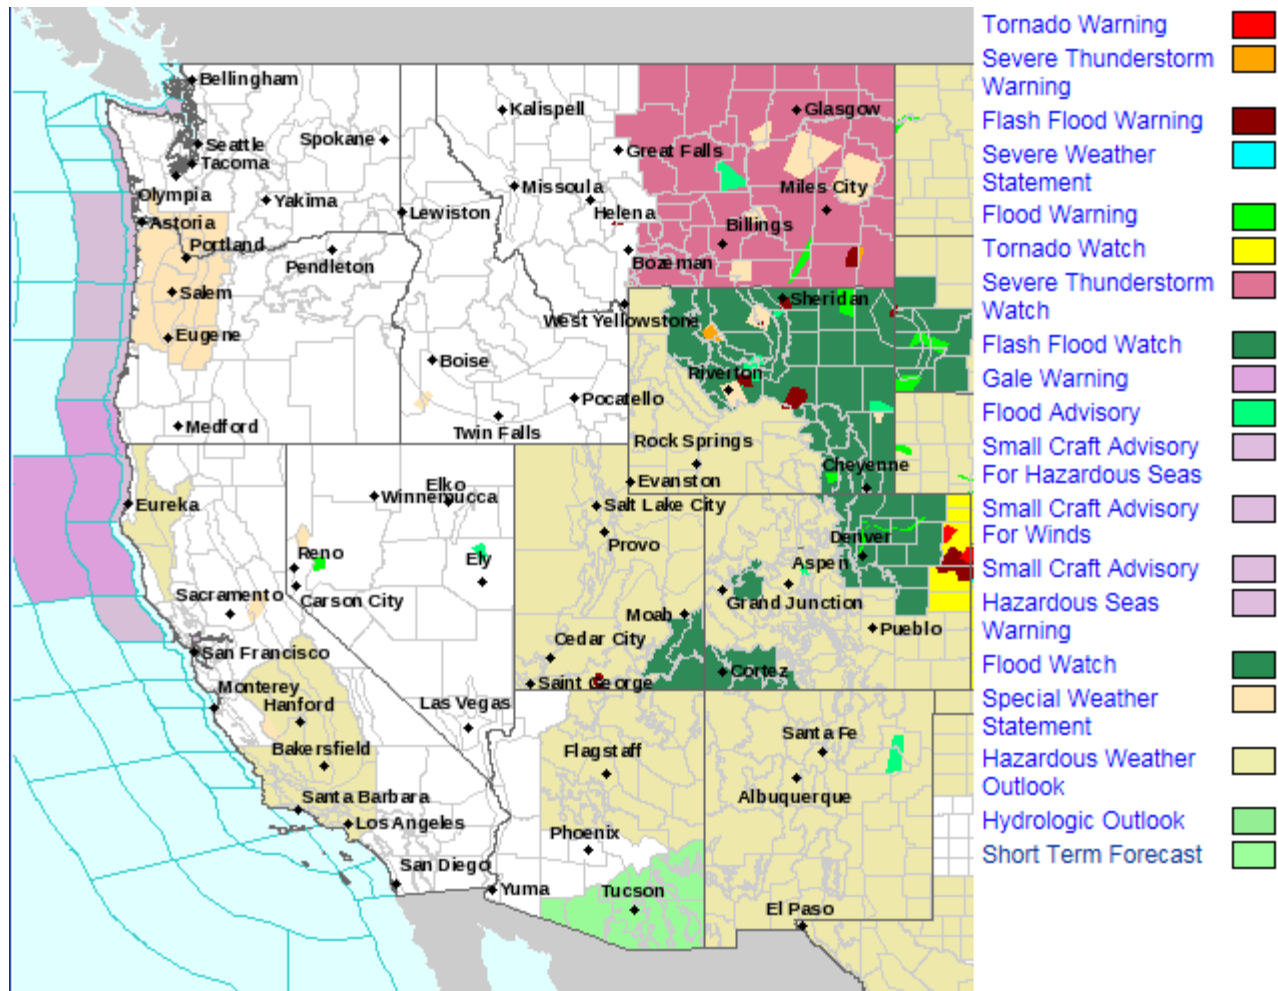

Northern Region

Low pressure is located over the Southern California desert today. Moist unstable air remains over Northern California with showers and thunderstorms expected again today, mainly over the higher terrain in the east. Nearby areas at lower elevations will see a slight chance of showers or thunderstorms as well. A direct hit from a storm can yield 0.50 inches or more. A similar pattern is expected on Saturday, but with the northern extent of the convection likely being Lassen County, as the low moves across Southern Nevada. Also, by late Saturday a high pressure ridge will build into the Pacific Northwest and begin to produce a light northeasterly flow pattern over Northern California. This pattern will continue through Monday with a warming and drying trend taking place in much of the Region. During this time Central Sierra thunderstorms may creep as far north as the Lake Tahoe region each afternoon. The high pressure ridge will break down Tuesday as low pressure moves back into the area. Showers and thunderstorms are possible again over the higher terrain Monday night through Thursday. Warm and dry weather will return with high pressure late next week.

Southern Region

A weak low pressure area lying across the central part of the state will continue to produce cool, onshore flow today and Saturday. A deep and widespread marine layer will cover the coast, coastal valleys, and the lower coastal slopes below 5,000 feet. High temperatures will remain 5-8 degrees below normal with highs in the 60s at the coast to the 70s in the valleys. Less wind is expected in the deserts, but some gusts to 25 mph will be possible by late morning into the afternoon. Scattered showers and isolated thunderstorms will be possible this afternoon, primarily in the Inyo National Forest and the Sierras. A few showers may occur on the north sides of the Angeles and San Bernardino National Forest as well as the Los Padres National Forest in Santa Barbara and Ventura Counties. A quarter of an inch of rain will be possible in the Sierras with lesser amounts elsewhere. Expect very little change for Saturday. Sunday into the first part of next week, high pressure expanding over the Southern Plains will lead to a warming trend. By Monday, highs will be back into the 90s in some of the warmer valleys. Daily rounds of convection will occur in the Sierra, but the rest of the area should see sunny weather with very little marine layer coverage. Moisture from Hurricane Blanca will likely remain to the east of the area, but some thunderstorms may develop across the deserts by next Tuesday. The rest of Southern California may see higher relative humidity by next Wednesday. The weather may turn cooler toward the end of next week.
